H. GREENFIELD LIKELY TO BE ALBERTA PREMIER

John Brownlee, of Calgary, Strong Contender for High Office. Members Endorse U. F. A. Platform. Members of Cabinet, as well as Premier, Likely to be Chosen Before Conference Closes. Headline not in the Running.

Calgary, July 26.—According to reports which are given considerable credence in political circles tonight, the names of John Brownlee, a young Calgary lawyer, and Herbert Greenfield, of Wetaskiwin, are those most frequently mentioned in connection with the leadership of the new farmers' government.

After two sessions, attended by every one of the thirty-eight members elected in Alberta, adjournment was taken at 5:30 this afternoon, the conference to resume again tomorrow morning.

"The conference discussed the platform and the membership of the cabinet, but took no action and will resume tomorrow morning for the purpose of further consideration of the platform." This is the rather cryptic and uninformative statement made by the publicity committee dealing with this matter.

The members were more reticent than the official statement and further than that there were many things discussed by many members; there is nothing at all definite about the first conference.

It is known, however, that Mr. Brownlee's name was placed before the members, and that it has been well received. There was some comment upon the fact that he was not a farmer, and that it would seem rather unusual for a farmer government to be led by a lawyer. He is a solicitor of the United Farmers of Alberta, is very well regarded in the city and very popular with the United Farmers. He has the farmers' viewpoint, and is regarded by the safest man to lead the way in a critical period of the province.

Mr. Brownlee is a graduate of the University of Toronto, a native of Lambton county, and has had a brilliant career in law. He is 37 years of age.

Whether or not the members will endorse Mr. Brownlee or not is not quite certain. Nothing like a division exists and the adjournment was merely for the purpose of considering the question, as the suggestion was rather unexpected. He was previously mentioned as certain to be attorney general in the new legislation.

The members discussed the platform of the association which was adopted by a special committee appointed by the U. F. A. at the last convention, and prepared for the first time before the election. Although the members were merely suggesting, the program reported that it was adopted with no material change in all of the ridings, and formed the basis of their election.

The program provides for proportional representation, a highway commission, abolition of patronage, progressive legislation in health and education, a mild declaration in favor of the group idea, and other progressive measures favored by the majority of the members. One clause refers to the encouragement of co-operative marketing and another for home-dye prohibition.

One clause which was most favorably commented upon by the members was the most favorably received during the campaign refers to the "freedom of members" and provides that no government shall be called upon to resign when it meets defeat in the house, except upon a direct vote of confidence vote, specifically stated. This is in line with the much discussed Turgeon-Davison resolution introduced in the House of Commons last week, and in order by the speaker.

WEDDINGS

HARRISON — MIQUELON

The marriage took place on Friday, July 16th, at St. Anthony's church, Edmonton south, of Cordelia Miquelon, youngest daughter of L. T. Miquelon, to Anthony Harrison, of Calgary. The bride wore a navy serge travelling suit opening over a shell pink georgette blouse, and a large black picture hat. The couple were attended by Mrs. and Mr. D. T. MacCallum, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. After a short honeymoon at Banff, the young couple will make their home in Calgary. We join in wishing them every joy and happiness through life.

GREAT TRIBUTE TO MR. STEWART

No public man could have given us a higher tribute than Hon. Chas. Stewart in the failure of his opponents to criticize his administration. It was noticeable throughout the campaign that the Premier had the confidence of his former opponents especially. They spoke of him as a capable, honest and upright man and quite often appealed to the public for support by insisting that even if the government was defeated Mr. Stewart would remain at the head of affairs. It is doubtful whether any prime minister ever as strongly regarded personally by his opponents.

Stewart's defeat, Mr. Stewart remains today as one of the strongest personalities in our public life. He has simply been overwhelmed by a new movement that is sweeping over the country. It was not a personal defeat of his government so much as a demand to try out a new system of government—Lethbridge Herald.

WETASKIWIN TAKES GAMES FROM HAY LAKE AND PONOKA

The league game with Ponoka on the home diamond on Friday evening last proved to be a good exhibition of ball, as with the exception of the eighth inning, it was closely contested throughout. Ponoka started pitching the game for the visitors, but his arm was sore, and he retired in the first inning after two runs had crossed the plate and two men in the field were replaced by Gordon (Lapelle), who had the Wetaskiwin, winning out of his hand after the end of the first round. Lapelle delivered the goods, as he allowed only one score in the third and three counters in the sixth. The features of the game were two double plays, one when H. Loughlin caught a difficult fly in the third, and threw to second. The other was a very snappy play, when Coffey stopped a stater, and threw to Johnson at second, who whipped it over to first and the side was retired. Heavy hitting also featured the play as Ryan of Wetaskiwin and Ely and Gouchee of Ponoka, each got doubles.

The box score follows:

OBITUARY

JOHN AMBLER

The news that John Ambler, one of the earliest settlers of the Wetaskiwin district, had passed away, was a shock to the great beyond will come as a shock to the many friends in this city and community.

The late Mr. Ambler, who was staying at the home of his sons, near Manitowish, was sick only a short time, and passed away on the 17th inst. He was born in Yorkshire, England, seventy-one years ago, and came to Canada with his parents when quite young and lived in Ontario for many years. In the year 1878 he married Elizabeth Jeannette Youmans. About twenty-eight years ago he came west and after looking over different locations in the west, decided to homestead in the Wetaskiwin district, and was a highly respected citizen of this community until two years ago, when he disposed of his property and went to British Columbia to visit relatives and friends. After spending a few months in the western province he returned to Alberta and settled with his sons on their ranch near Manitowish.

He had been a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters for thirty-six years. He was desirous to marry his second wife, three sons, J. W. Frank and George, and one daughter, Mrs. Parker of Lethbridge.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, the remains being laid away in the cemetery at 2:30 p.m.

His long list of victories when they defeated Hay Lakes on Tuesday evening, the result being a five to two, was a record for the district.

Understand this is the first defeat administered to the visitors this season, and we do not doubt, as they have a "miffy" team of gentlemen players.

On Tuesday, the visitor for Hay Lakes, played a consistent game, striking out seven and walked only two. Butchart started the game for Wetaskiwin, and in his four innings struck out four and allowed four hits. Gouchee, who replaced him, had a sore arm, and had difficulty in holding his opponents. As it was struck out three, the Wetaskiwin team was weakened by the absence of Johnson, who had the misfortune to sprain an ankle while playing on the field at Bayview, on Monday night, and which will keep him out of the game for some time.

Butchart and Gouchee had charge of the territory around second. Ed Gouchee, the veteran baseball player of Western Canada, took charge of the third sack, and it is very evident that he has not lost any of his old-time cunning and alertness.

The following is the box score:

The Wetaskiwin team went to Banff on Monday evening to play a return game and met defeat by the score of 16 to 2.

Wetaskiwin went to Red Deer Wednesday (yesterday) for a league game. Although the fans hoped that luck would be in the favor.

We are sure and see the two league games during the fair, when Innisfail and Red Deer oppose the local team.

Hay Lakes are meeting the local team on the Wetaskiwin diamond on Friday of this week. They are said to be out for revenge for their defeat and are bringing a strengthened lineup for the Friday game.

CITY COUNCIL CONVENES IN REGULAR SESSION

Mining Rights to Gas and Oil in Wetaskiwin Considered. Inspector under Mothers' Allowance Act Appointed. Accident Insurance Offered City. Requirement of Compensation Board to be Complied With. City has Good Water Supply.

The regular meeting of the city council was held on Tuesday evening with all the members in attendance except Ald. Egan.

After the adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting, a letter was read from the department respecting the resignation of the police constable under the Mothers' Allowance act. Chief of Police Marshall was appointed inspector on motion of Ellis and MacBachern.

This case of Emma Walker, under the Mothers' Allowance act, was referred to Inspector Marshall, along with the chairman of the police committee, to bring in a report at the next meeting.

A letter was read from the Department of the Interior at Ottawa regarding the gas and mineral rights of Wetaskiwin. After deliberation, it was moved by Ellis and Compton, that the city solicitor be asked to advise the council whether the city's original title holds the mining rights to gas and oil, and the letter received from Ottawa be referred to him. Carried.

A letter from the municipal finance commission was referred to the solicitor and the city clerk for suitable reply.

It was moved by MacBachern and Ellis that the requirements of the Workmen's Compensation Board Inspector's report be referred to the police light and power committee with instructions to act.

Mayor Fowler reported to the council that after conferring with the city solicitor, he found the city not liable.

In any amount to Joseph Williams, who was injured in the power house accident last January.

The letter from A. A. Whiston, secretary of the Municipal Hospital, was received and filed.

The Employers' Liability Corporation of Calgary offered to insure the city against sidewalk and other street accidents at the rate of 1/40 each. This was referred to the finance committee to investigate and report.

Ald. Richards informed the council that, since the recent rains, there was a good water supply in the city.

The cost of installing the water for use at the exhibition grounds was discussed, and it was decided to ask the agricultural society to pay the cost of installation, which is now permanent.

The matter of securing an official scavenger for the city was referred to the chairman of the police, license and relief committee.

The city solicitor's account of over $900.00 was referred to the finance committee with instructions to take the matter up with the solicitor and endeavor to arrange a settlement.

The offer of Mr. A. Jensen to loan his house for the sum total of $5.00 was accepted.

G. Lusk was informed that the city has no power to make a reduction on his assessment, as the appeal was not properly made.

The following accounts were passed for payment: General $206.94; Waterworks, $1127.55; Electric Light, $457.10; Supplementary, $317.00.

Meeting adjourned.

FAIR NOTES

The International Amusement Carnival is travelling north from Crossfield, where it was in full swing on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Don't forget Wetaskiwin Fair dates, 1st, 2nd and 3rd of August, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. These dates suggest that the fair will come off in one, two, three or four days.

The secretary reports that never before has so many entries been received so far in advance.

The fair stables are already being filled with race horses. Wetaskiwin should see two of the finest days of horse racing in the history of the City.

This is the first time the Fair ever had them. Help make it a success.

The best baseball of the season will be seen each evening of the Fair—league games two nights.

The Wetaskiwin Agricultural Society have engaged four special acts for the grand stand. These have cost the society a large sum of money and something good is promised.

The Wetaskiwin band has finished the music afternoons and evenings.

The local stock owners, to exhibit. The future of the Fair depends on this. See "Novice Classes" in the prize list, also rules.

MEXICAN OIL FIELDS ON FIRE; TOWERS FALLING LIKE CHAFF WORKMEN FLEEING

The Amatlan oil fields are on fire, with drilling towers falling like chaff and the workmen fleeing, according to reports received here describing "the greatest catastrophe in the history of the oil field." The cause of the fire is not known.

The financial loss cannot be estimated, say the officials, which adds to the conflagration dwells into insignificant the Petro de Landa conflagration.

Columns of fire hundreds of feet high are covering the fields, it is declared, and efforts to suppress the blaze are considered hopeless.

It is also feared that the fire will be some loss of life as the fire spread quickly from lot number 162, where it started after the well in the vicinity exploded.

The Amatlan field is one of the richest in the state of Vera Cruz.

OLDS SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

The Old School of Agriculture Alumni association have decided to hold the summer reunion at the O.S.A. on the afternoon and evening of August 28th. CAMROSE FAIR SHOWS ANOTHER YEAR'S GROWTH

With one hundred exhibitors, half of whom were exhibiting livestock, the Camrose Fair opened its gates last Thursday under the most prosperous conditions it has ever experienced. The weather was perfect, the attractions good, and the attendance exceptional for the opening day, the feature of which was that it was children's day.

The youngsters came in hundreds, very glad to accept the hospitality of the fair management, and later they were invited to attend the Shesheep shows, which are supplying the mid-way attractions. The grand stand attractions, supplied by Alex Elbel Robinson, of Chicago, are well above the average and never had a more appreciative audience than that given them by the children, who, with their grown up friends, packed the grand stand. Following the grandstand performance there was a program of sports for the youngsters, and none lacked for prizes while the interest there was as keen as with the more pretentious attractions.

During the afternoon, an aeroplane from the McCall dome, Calgary, landed on the grounds and ran an air bus for those desiring to view their fields and flocks from the air.

The crowd on the second day began to arrive by train, but mostly in motor cars from early morning, and by two o'clock the grand stand was crowded and the grounds full. The weather was fine, but hot, and this only increased the receipts of the cold drink vendors.

The big drawback for the fair was its lack of accommodation for live stock, and it would seem as though something will have to be done in this respect along the 13. circuit, or else cut down the entry in some way. It leads to a lot of dissatisfaction among the exhibitors, the judges and the on-lookers.

The entries in the women's work are good and attracted lots of attention.

WOULD GO FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE ABOUT EMPLOYMENT

TENNESSEE FARMERS. WANTS TO GO FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE AND TELL EVERYBODY ABOUT TANLAC

"If I were not so busy with my farm work I would go from house to house and tell the people about Tanlac," said A. J. Livingston, a well-known farmer, living near Ashland City, Tenn. "I had stomach and kidney trouble and suffered terribly with my back and side. The doctors could do nothing for me so I wrote to a friend of mine in Nashville about Tanlac and he advised me to try it, saying he had heard so many favorable reports about it, and sent me a bottle."

"After taking the first bottle I felt so much better that I ordered another bottle myself and the result is I am a well man. I told a friend of mine about it and ordered a bottle for him and he had good results. I can do anything I want and it doesn't hurt me and can sleep like a log. To tell you the truth, I just simply feel like a new man and have more strength and energy than I have had in years. It is simply the greatest medicine in the world. I would like to see all of my friends and get those who are suffering to try it and I hope you will reach them through this testimonial, which I have gladly given."

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine, which accomplished such remarkable results in this man's case, is a wonderful tonic, appetizer and invigorant. It builds up the system, creates a healthy appetite, promotes digestion and assimilation of the food and makes you feel strong, sturdy and well as nature intended.

Lethbridge, July, 15.—Further details of the ball storm show that a strip of country from the foothills east and south east of the Barrowville area, from one and a half to three miles wide, was hailed severely with losses ranging from 65 to 100 per cent. The hail was severe, leaving in its track nothing but devastated fields. In some sections ducks and chickens were killed outright. In addition to the losses on the Noble farm, there were severe losses in the Chin district.

MUCH WAS SAID, BUT LITTLE DONE, ABOUT EMPLOYMENT

So far as putting forward any suggestions which might lead to a permanent solution of the overemployment problem is concerned, the conference held last week at the Parliament buildings, at the instance of Premier Stewart, did not get very far.

By the very nature of the political situation just now, it could not be expected to get very far, and this was pointed out early in the conference by Alex Ross, M.L.A. of Calgary. Premier Stewart and his ministers are about to leave office, and as a new government is coming in within a few weeks Mr. Stewart could not make any commitments on behalf of the government of the province with respect to the government's share in any permanent solution. Premier Stewart frankly stated this at the opening of the conference. Nevertheless, it appeared to be his idea that the conference might make some recommendations which might lead to a permanent solution.

Alex Ross held different ideas. He did not see what could be done until the new government took office, since there was no use he said, in making plans to open up work or in spending money, or create any new legislation, new party in control would be willing when it was not known how far the tide was running.

These were the two distinct lines

PALPITATION OF THE HEART SINKING SENSATIONS.

Palpitation of the heart is very often accompanied by sinking sensations and weak faint and dizzy spells, and before you can rid yourself of the trouble it is of considerable importance that the heart should be strengthened and brought back to its regular beat.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

are just the remedy you require to do this. Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes:— "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exertion, such as going up stairs, or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip hammer and at times I was dizzy headed and had a sinking sensation as if my life was near. A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I procured three boxes, and by the time the first was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and I feel like a young girl, no dizziness or heart thumping, and can walk miles without fatigue. At the time of sickness I weighed 120 lbs, now I weigh 160."

Strong and Vigorous

MADAME ARTHUR BEAUCHER
805 Carleton St., Montreal.

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take 'Fruit-a-lives'. I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, the Constipation was banished, I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

If by spending a dollar now, you could save yourself seven or eight dollars later, wouldn't you figure that dollar a mighty good investment?

Maybe you have a tire with a bad tread cut. If repaired now, the cost will be trifling and the tire's life saved.

Neglected, a tread-cut soon grows. Eventually a blow-out will occur. And to put the tire back into service again demands a sectional repair, costing many times the price of vulcanizing a small tread-cut.

"We Produce the Wealth; We Share It With You"

Such was the burden of a message sent out by the Farmers Party during the recent campaign. It was effective, but untrue, in some respects. Let us, it was said, be a whole lot. Let us examine this, in the light of the dispassionate feeling which should exist after an election. It is the true that the farmers produce the necessities of life so far as these are required by the residents of the towns and cities.

Farmers produce no wealth; not one cent's worth of wealth do they produce. They produce certain raw materials, which after manufacturing processes, are necessary for the use of others. No one eats plain wheat; no one eats raw beef or pork; with few exceptions no one eats any raw stuff as it leaves the farm. All this raw material must be made palatable to the taste of the consumer or it is wasted.

Take then the position of the consumer. He is the man who actually produces the wealth. Without the consumer to take care of the production of the farm, that production is no wealth but waste.

One end of the community cannot exist without the other. True, farmers can go ahead and produce any amount of stuff, but after they have provided for themselves, their surplus must be absorbed by the general community or the world at large or become "waste."

This theme is capable of considerable elaboration, but there is enough said here to enable any thinking farmer to take into his earnest thought the fact that while he is one, and a very necessary one of the community he isn't the only one to be thought of.—Vergiville Observer.

The Victory of The U. F. A.

The victory of the United Farmers of Alberta is so sweeping as to bring greatly into the political situation in the province. The Stewart government goes out; and the U. F. A. government goes in; there is simply a change of administration—something which often follows a general election.

Early in the Alberta campaign Mr. Wood said that the U. F. A. was an old group, and a political party. Economical group or not it is indubitable that it is now a political party which is called upon, in conformity with the working of our constitutional system, to assume the responsibility of administering the affairs of a great community.

In response to its proposal to take charge the electors of Alberta have given the U. F. A. a clear majority over all the other parties. It will control the working of the constitutional system, to assume the responsibility of administering the affairs of a great community.

As we have indicated, this is somewhat cryptic; but it leaves on the mind the impression that the Farmer representatives are going to forever alter the political situation in this province. Mr. Wood is the one man who is identified in the public mind with the Alberta development in the farmers' movement; he has neither understanding nor leadership. The policy which the electors have endorsed is his; the electors have endorsed it as satisfactory were made by him; his obligation to the electors to take over the powers and responsibilities of the government is unequivocal. It is reasonable to assume that Mr. Wood will make no difficulty about this; but will arrange to take the reins of power from Mr. Stewart at the earliest possible moment.—Maitland Press.

URGENT WORK FOR ALBERTA RED CROSS

As the Red Cross develops its organization throughout Alberta and organizes further units in the local centres, it becomes increasingly evident that the need of such preparations is very vital. The headquarters of the Alberta Red Cross in Calgary is daily in receipt of letters and requests for help. In the districts where the rain did not come in time to save the crop, these requests are very numerous.

The Red Cross has been meeting the demands with their organized efficiency. In most cases, in fact, wherever possible, they are getting their local units to investigate and report on the needs. This is working out well and brings a sympathetic feeling between the units and the parent organization.

Next week, Dr. James W. Robertson, C.M.G., chairman of the National Red Cross in Toronto, will visit Calgary and Edmonton. He is looking over the Red Cross work in western Canada in addition to his mission in connection with the Boy Scouts, and comes to Alberta after spending some time in British Columbia.

Mrs. Wagon, vice president and honorary secretary of the provincial branch, returned to Calgary recently after attending the conference on the unemployment which was called by the government. She comes back with refreshing news of the activities of the unemployed in the west, and the U. S. government weather bureau.

There is no probable relation between the weather and the unemployed, especially "Fort Saskatchewan, where there are 800 men."

FARMING COUNTRY AIDED BY JULY RAINS MAKE GRAIN YIELD

Good, very good, and extra good, are the crop prospects in the Edmonton district and the northern part of the province as indicated by the reports to the department of agriculture. The news of the past week has confirmed the encouraging forecasts of some ten days ago and the outlook now is said to be distinctly favorable to a fairly heavy harvest.

The Clover Bar and Stony Plain crop areas are in the shape and are showing every promise of good yield. In the Bon Accord district and in the country immediately south of Edmonton there will be heavy crops, while the Grande Prairie and Peace River farmers are looking for an almost bumper harvest.

East of Edmonton, on the Canadian National lines, the crops are reported as good, and especially in the Lloydminster district. On the C.P.R. line east of Wetaskiwin there promises to be fair crops. Other sections of the central and northern parts of the province vary in much the same proportion.

There has been very little hail in any part of Alberta this year and the losses from that scourge have been much smaller than usual. Damage by insect pests has also been restricted through vigilant efforts to stop the grasshopper invasion in particular and the whole crop situation has therefore been reduced considerably in the past week.

The out crop is looking well, a good part of it being shot and developing rapidly. The weather conditions of the past ten days have been favorable to plant growth, and the grain is thickening up in all the localities heard from.

It is not expected that there will be any cutting of wheat in the middle-north country until about August 15. A little rye has been cut, however, showing a good yield.

Good news comes also from the potato crop, which promises to be heavy. The acreage in potatoes is said to be about the same as last year, and from all parts of the district, as well as from most of the south country, the reports are that there will be a first class yield.

"CHOLERA INFANTUM" THE SUMMER COMPLAINT OF INFANTS.

The trouble comes mostly during the hot seasons, and is confined to infants between the ages of four to twenty months, and generally happens about the time of the cutting of the first teeth. Mothers should look well after their children at this stage and not experiment with any new and untried remedies, but secure one having got the test of many years' use in thousands of families.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for 75 years, and is the only remedy that has been used to the very best results for Cholera Infantum, Diarrhoea, Colic, Dysentery, and all the ailments of infants in children or adults.

Mrs. R. R. Brown, 1000 St. Mary's, N.Y., writes: "My little girl was very hot with summer complaint and I was advised to try 'Dr. Fowler's'. I did so, and by the time she had taken several doses she was all right. I was advised to try 'Dr. Fowler's'. I did so, and by the time she had taken several doses she was all right."

WHOLE WORLD IS NOW IN GRIP OF A HEAT WAVE

Washington, July 23.—Uncle Sam's weather experts are stampeded. The hot wave prevailing not only throughout the United States, but the whole of the north and south temperate zones, is they declare "without rhyme, ratio or reason."

While the United States has been in the grip of a heat wave not equalled since 1901, England and Europe have been sweltering in temperatures greater than have been known for fifty years.

Alpine glaciers, dissolving under the abnormal heat, have swollen mountain streams to raging torrents. In other sections, streams have dried up, walls gone dry and crops are parched.

Grazing lands are dried up, and the stock raisers, without forage and with little water for their animals, are desperate.

Fires have caused damage in many European forests. Inhabitants of villages scattered through the famous forest of Fontainebleau, near Paris, refuse to go to bed for fear of fires, many of which have been put out by desperate efforts, will sweep the forest.

"We have not been able to identify any exact causes for the conditions," says Dr. Charles P. Marvin, chief of the U. S. government weather bureau. "There is no probable relation between the weather and the unemployed, especially 'Fort Saskatchewan, where there are 800 men.'"

The most exact measurements of solar radiation reveal little if any change in temperature due to them. As a matter of fact, however, we are now passing through a period when sunspots are at a minimum.

Neither is there any basis for ascribing unusual conditions of weather to earthquakes. It would be just as logical to ascribe earthquakes to unusual weather influences. There is no established proof either way.

One of the most unusual features of present world weather conditions, Marvin said, is the similarity of conditions in America and Europe.

"Usually," he said, "they do not run parallel. When we have a hot summer in the United States, the people in Europe generally have a cool. When it is hot in Europe, it is generally cool here. But the present hot weather seems general throughout the temperate zones."

"What it is due to, no one can say with any degree of assurance."

CATTLE RATE ON OCEAN REDUCED TO $30 A HEAD

Winnipeg, July 23.—News from the east that the ocean freight rate on cattle shipped from Montreal to England has been reduced to $30 a head was received with gratification by local livestock men today as indicating the possibility of readjustment to something like pre-war rate. The opinion was expressed, however, that the rate must be reduced considerably more before a resumption of export will manifest itself to any great degree.

Colonel H. A. Mullins, a prominent western livestock man, said that it would be a considerable time before export business could be carried on even in the face of a flat 110 reduction on the price of cattle.

"I shipped thousands of head of beef cattle to England in the pre-war period," said Colonel Mullins, "when I paid an ocean freight rate of not more than 40 shillings a head. This rate was paid in English currency on the other side of the water. Today the American shipping interests, who control practically all of the cattle boats, are charging exorbitant freight rates and require the freight to be paid in American currency on this side of the water. This has made the shipping of cattle to England from the United States practically an impossibility as, in most cases, the combined rail and ocean freight rate has been as much as the farmer has been paid for the animal in the first place."

"The livestock interests throughout Canada are expecting Premier Meighen to come back to Canada with the 'British embargo' in his pocket, and if he is not successful in doing this the livestock industry will suffer considerably."

CANADIAN GRAVES IN GOOD CONDITION SAYS COL. McMILLAN

Toronto, July 23.—The people of Canada may get their minds at rest concerning the bodies of their beloved heroes, who sleep where they fell in the soil of Flanders and France, defending civilization against the Teutonic onslaught, was the reassuring message which Col. McMILLAN, of the territorial staff of the Salvation army brought to the city yesterday in reply to the distressing item called in Canada, after publication in the London Express, of the empty Canadian graves.

"The cemeteries of the Canadians are in splendid condition," he assured.

CYCLONE STRIKES AT LAC LA BICHE DOES BIG DAMAGE

Lac la Biche, July 23.—About six p.m., a terrific cyclone struck this district. The historical church at Lac la Biche mission, the second oldest in Alberta, built by Bishop Parvov as his Diocesan church was completely wrecked and now lies in matchwood on the shores of the lake.

The roof of the convent is much damaged, the windows destroyed, the furniture moved several feet.

In the large pile of sawn lumber near by boards were badly driven endways into the walls of the convent and near the mission southward many farm buildings were either totally or partially destroyed. A wide stretch of country between this mission and Big Lake was laid completely flat.

This point and Athabasca could only be reached at 3 p.m. yesterday. A gag of men have been employed on the railway since Thursday morning to the telephone line. So far no particulars are to hand as to the casualties.

ALBERTA SERGT. FINISHED THIRD IN KING'S PRIZE

Bisby Camp, July 23.—Armstrong Sgt. Cunningham, late of the British Royal Army Medical Corps, won the King's Prize on Thursday with an aggregate of 226.

THE NEW GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CANADA IS VERY DEMOCRATIC

A man who might have led a life of pleasure and ease, General Lord Blyth, of Vimy, the new governor-general of Canada is a striking instance of a young English aristocrat who put his nose to the grindstone and lived laborious days and made the best of the gifts that God had given him.

"You know there is no special reason for me to do this work," he once told his army school master, when he was preparing for examination for entrance to the Staff College. "But rather than it should ever be said that I attained advancement by any backstairs influence or favoritism, I am going to work my own way up."

He was then a captain and adjutant of the Tenth Hussars, and he worked tremendously hard. "I don't think the captain ever goes to bed," said his batman, "he is with those blessed old books all night."

A captain in a crack British cavalry regiment quartered in an English country town can have a very good time. It must have required an iron will, a right self discipline to cut himself off from the most of the social amenities of army life. Young Blyth would stand away from the officers' mess and go to his room just at that agreeable time when the will was beginning to flag.

He would work hard until the early hours of the morning—a steady dull grind. That of course is the only way for a man of ambition. An officer risks popularity in doing this although Blyth was always very popular for he was keen on sport and never took up an attitude of intellectual superiority.

After he had finished his course in mathematics, he got hold of a variety man, a mathematical exhibitor to catch him. It had been his intention at infrequent intervals musical sounds would issue from Blyth's study. He had a fine and the little obligate work set out a solution to his problem.

Lord Blyth is the thirteenth child and the seventh son of the late Lord Stratford. His grandfather, Sir John Blyth, was a field marshal at Waterloo. An ancestor, Admiral Sir John Blyth was shot for fighting an unsatisfactory action although there was no imputation against his honor or his courage.

Lord Blyth at Eton was very near the bottom of his form. He did not shine as a scholar. Perhaps that is due to facts that his country for execution of industry and success. In boyhood sometimes mean success afterwards.

During his early days the real character of Lord Blyth became manifest. His subsequent career in many respects follows closely on the lines of that of many great Englishmen, who are a life of leisure, but endowed with much brains and will power.

He did not go to a university. His father put him on a comparatively modest allowance.

He joined the Hussars in Canada at Lucknow, and first saw active service in Egypt. In the South African war he organized the South African Light Horse. This was a considerable feat for the majority of the men who followed him were of the opinion that rough types untrained to discipline. The story is told that when they knew that a young English dandy was coming to drill them they prepared for an amusing time. The young dandy turned out to be one of those who must be obeyed. There was no circus tricks that Blyth got married. He, who was looked upon as a bachelor reclusé to the astonishment of his friends took to himself a wife. The lady was Evelyn Moreton, only child of the Hon. Richard and Mrs. Moreton. They met in 1897, but he did not propose marriage until five years afterwards. They became a couple from South Africa. "Will you marry me?" She called back "Yes, please return immediately with the necessary documents."

Lord Blyth's record in the war is too well known to need any recapitulation. But I do not think it is yet generally realized that it was he who invented breaking through the enemy's wire by a tank mass attack without artillery preparation, which took the Germans entirely by surprise at Cambrai and very near brought about irretrievable disaster to the German army. Both Ludendorff and Hindenburg have admitted that they were for the time being completely outwitted by this entirely new strategy. Very few people know that Blyth prepared this Cambrai attack several months before it came off. It did not come sooner because the British high command were already committed to the projected Passchendaele fight. It was Blyth who conducted the Salva Bay evacuation without the loss of a single man.

A very simple living man, modest and retiring, he and Lady Blyth have been very popular in Thompson-Selkirk. The village will greatly miss her. Neither Lady Blyth nor her husband will allow social distinctions to interfere with their friendships. They are true democrats at heart.

In the closest election contest ever held in Leduc provincial riding, S. G. Tobin was defeated over S. M. Mar by a majority of eight, the vote standing 1365 for Tobin and 1346 for Mar. —Representative.

With the Weekly Newspaper Men of Canada at Vancouver

As intimated a few weeks ago, we will make some reference to the trip of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper men's Association which was made last month to the beautiful city of Vancouver, where the biggest and most successful convention of newspaper men ever held on the continent took place. A special train left Toronto on June 4 to convey the delegates from Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime provinces to the west. This special came west over the Canadian National line and returned via the C.P.R., thus enabling the visitors from the east to see all the country possible during the short time at their disposal.

The party was augmented by a special car at Saskatoon in which were the representatives from Saskatchewan, and by two special cars at Edmonton, which were provided to carry the Albertans.

The Canadian National Railway with the Canadian Pacific Railway each supplied their latest type of equipment for the train which consisted of six standard drawing room sleeping cars, dining car, tourist car, baggage car and open top observation car. The editors were very much interested in inspecting the many new features of the train. The Canadian National sleeping cars comprised in the train. These steel cars are the latest expression of the railway car builders' art, quietly, but extremely up-to-date—have individual heating control, which can be utilized from each berth; thermos bottles in drawing rooms, and several other devices calculated to make a transcontinental journey as pleasurable as possible. The dining car is one of the most modern Canadian National type, paneled in oak. The Canadian National took advantage of the editors' tour over their lines to place in service their new dining car menus on the trip. The menus for the trip were the various stages of Canada's development. This splendid train was the home of the editors for eighteen days, and nothing was too good for them and at the same time show the newspapers the many striking indications of the agricultural and industrial progress of the Dominion.

The officials who were in charge of the train were as follows: C. K. Howard, general tourist agent; Toronto; H. J. Laubach, inspector of dining and sleeping cars; Winnipeg; J. Kelly, steward in charge of dining; Winnipeg; Walter Thompson, publicity agent; Grand Rapids; J. C. Sawyer, who was in charge of the train; Winnipeg; C. F. Riddell, publicity agent of Canadian National; Vancouver; Osborne Scott, publicity agent of the C.P.R.; Vancouver. An electrician, also a master mechanic and superintendent of each division were on the train. The baggage car was specially fitted and in charge of the train. Baggage was available at all hours.

A meeting of the Alberta division of the C.N.W.A. was held at Edmonton on June 4th, and the special party from the east reached that city on the morning of June 4th.

The city of Edmonton is known as one of the most hospitable places in western Canada, and the reception given the newspapermen and their wives is evidence that this reputation is well merited. When the train arrived at 9:30 Monday morning, the streets around the C.N.R. station were filled with automobiles waiting to convey the visitors to their hotels. Hotel, where prominent citizens had assembled to give the party a right royal welcome. Here relatives met and friends, and the train arrived in a very short time the visitors were made to feel the welcome and freedom of the west. After this reception a rest and easy time was permitted until three p.m., when automobiles were taken at the hotel and the members of the party were driven to any part of the city they wished to see. An inspection of the parliament buildings was made and a call was made at Government House. The Lieutenant Governor was out of the city, but his sister, Mrs. McBurnett, received the visitors. Every one signed the big visitors book and was shown over part of the house. As many of our readers know, the building is a beautiful situation overlooking the river and the well-wooded country of the opposite bank. The guests were served a dinner at the fine dining hall of the United Hotel, where the party was entertained. Appropriate replies were made, and it was almost train time when the gathering dispersed.

From Edmonton the Canadian National train went on to the Pacific coast, the country becoming more rolling and the timber larger. The altitude steadily rises and between Invermere and Yreka, a distance of 123 miles, an increase of 750 feet is noted. The outline of the mountains soon appears, but Edmonton is one hundred miles behind before the first foothills are reached. This part is well watered by rivers and lakes. The railway follows the route along the Athabasca river and up the mountains were reached lofty peaks in view. There was a tecompo, and some excellent, amongst those who had seen the Rockies before, and very few of the others had travelled the new route. Soon after entrance to the railway to Jasper National Park, of the great National reserves, the station called Jasper, was reached at 8 o'clock. Automobiles, saddle ponies and wagons and the party alighted on the train. After a short ride a stop was made at Brewster's camp on a very beautiful sheet of water of a most peculiar shape, much to the better known Lake Louise. Here a stop was made and dinner served. The party then went up to the Maligne Canyon. The trail winds up the mountain side and often there is not room for two automobiles to pass between the cliff and the precipices. A look down the narrow canyon was obtained from the small rustic bridge thrown over the gaping crevice, where the water was rushing nearly two hundred feet below. A short distance down stream another view was taken, where the gorge was considerably over 200 feet deep. Here there was no bridge, but each of the party climbed or slipped down to the edge and held on to a lonely tree. A quarter of a mile farther on a lovely view of the valley, lakes, and surrounding mountains was obtained. This was one of the finest sights on the trip. Numerous wild flowers grow in profusion in the vicinity.

Jasper Park is a game preserve and forest reservation of 4,000 square miles. A fine townsite has been laid out at the station with the post office building, a handsome stone structure, in the centre. Numerous roads and trails have been built in all directions, and parties find plenty of interesting places to visit. During the week an interment camp was at the park, and a great deal of road building was being done by the prisoners. The Maligne river runs for considerable distance underground, and strange to say is a much smaller body of water than where it leaves Maligne Lake, ten miles distant.

The original bed of the river can be followed for a long distance. It is now covered with moss. The water in the canyon has been cutting through the mountains for ages, and in places the gorge is only ten feet wide. It is one of the spectacular sights of the rocky mountains. Mount Edith Cameron can be seen to advantage from Jasper, and plans are under way to improve the trails leading up to it.

Colonel Rogers, the superintendent, was in command of Valcartier camp, and did much valuable service for the government during the war. Practically all the officials at the park are returned men.

We had the pleasure of renewing the acquaintance of Mr. John James, formerly chief of police here. We also met Mr. G. C. Sawyer, who was in charge of the train, and he told us he was feeling greatly improved in health.

Jasper station is 3,456 feet above sea level. Pyramid mountain is 9,076 feet. Mount Teakapa 9,486 and Mount Edith Cameron 11,042.

At Jasper the press party got their first glimpses of the mountains, and the impressions made were lasting. The first view was a delightful surprise, experience, entered into with zest and enthusiasm. Many, old and young, made the trip up and down the trail on the saddle ponies, but few took the ponies to trees and got a glimpse in a car. As the park is full of game, many wild animals were met on the trail.

At 4:30 p.m. the afternoon, after addresses of appreciation, songs and cheers, the train left for greater altitudes. At 6 o'clock the train stopped at a very high point, overlooking the best of the Canadian Rockies. Unfortunately the clouds covered the peak, and the party, approached, and they had not quite disappeared when the train moved out.

Beyond Jasper a short distance is Gullies, the station within the province of Alberta. Soon after the great divide was passed, and the journey down to Vancouver began.

During the day spent at Jasper Park a heavy shower of rain, further up the mountains, caused a washout to an approach to a bridge and at midnight the train ran on to a siding at Blue River, where it remained until the next day.

Late in the afternoon Kamloops was reached, and a stop was made to see the night. Automobiles were waiting and a hurried trip was made through the town. The town is at the junction of the north and south Thompson rivers, and has a population of 200. It is situated in the famous dry belt and is surrounded by a good grazing section and by mines. Nearby are also good fruit ranches. A prehistoric sanatorium is situated near Kamloops.

The climate is very helpful to people afflicted with pulmonary trouble. Kamloops is an old trading post, where the Northwest Company established themselves in 1813. The first report of gold in British Columbia came from Kamloops. While gold had been seen at an earlier date, it was in 1855 that a servant of the company found it in quantities. 20,000 miners rushed in and staked claims, and millions of dollars worth of ore was mined. Today Kamloops is a pretty town, modern in every way.

The run into Vancouver was to have been made in daylight, but it had to be made at night owing to the delay at Blue River, and much of the scenery was missed. However, otherwise, it did not upset the itinerary at Vancouver which was reached early in the morning instead of the night before.

At Vancouver we met a number of old friends among them Mr. R. G. Davison, publicity commissioner, who very kindly took the editor and wife on a sight-seeing tour around the city, including North Vancouver; Dr. McKay, who is well located and informed as to what was well pleased with the coast; Mr. N. G. Call, who is conducting a large optical store in the heart of the city; Mr. Murdoch, a former partner with Mayor Fowler; Rev. McCougan, recently of Strathcona; Mr. Himey; Mr. Hager, Miss Shaw, and many others.

(We will make further reference to the trip in our next issue.)

MY AUTO CAR

My little old car
I broke all to heck
I drove it to town,
And got in a wreck.
I drove round a corner,
And Oh, such a smash.
It tipped me clear over
With a very loud crash.
The wheels all ran off
And how they did hum,
The noise that they made
Angered the people to come.
They seemed in a hurry,
But it didn't them good.
For I was excited;
Like a fool there I stood.
And one them in a hurry,
And also in doors,
They bumped into people,
That made mighty noise.
The women did yell,
And the rest of the car.
Went to (where shall I tell),
It was only a Ford
That belonged to my Dad,
When he heard the news,
He sure was mad.
For all that was left,
Was a little short crank,
A foot here, a cushion,
And a gasoline tank.
Most people have Ford's,
To jump around in;
Of course they are cheap,
Because they are all in.
You can see them in town,
You can see them in Zoos.
You can see them in ditches,
And even them in sloughs.
There is not much to them,
From what I can see,
So when you get a car,
Get a Car by Buick.
That is heavier in weight,
But lighter in noise.
When you are buying a car,
Get a Buick or a Ford.

MIRROR, ALBERTA, WOMAN, IS SOUGHT IN UNITED STATES

Minneapolis, July 23.—Mrs. Manche Suggs, of Mirror, Alberta, whose extradition has been sought by the Canadian government, was ordered released yesterday by federal judge Wilbur F. Booth at a habeas corpus hearing. She was charged with assisting in an illegal operation. Immediately upon her release, she was rearrested on a second similar charge, and on which the Canadian government will attempt to get her extradited. She is now in the Hennepin county jail, awaiting a second hearing.

Mrs. Suggs was first arrested on June 17th, at Sleepy Eye, Minn., by Detective J. O. Scott, of the Alberta provincial police, and brought to Minneapolis pending hearing before a United States commissioner.

Dandruff Is Not Ivory Dust

Just because you have dandruff is no sign that your head is ivory. It would naturally follow that you'd have sawdust on your head, but a wooden head, that would be the case.

Dandruff is, however, a disgusting condition and there is now no excuse for being afflicted with it since "JUSS" (Harrison's special hair tonic and dandruff conditioner) has come on the market.

"JUSS" is made by a famous laboratory of famous druggists, who were in the drug business there for twelve years and the formula is the result of ten years laboratory and analytical tests to discover an agent that would kill the dandruff germ.

Two years ago they were successful and the preparation was then put on the market. Such a success was achieved that they were compelled to discontinue of their business (one of the factors in the city) so they could properly look after the manufacture of their hair tonic, the demand for which has exceeded their wildest dreams.

Orders for "JUSS" came in from all parts of Canada, U.S., England and Australia, which was remarkable considering the fact that no advertising was done outside of the Calgary papers. People who have used "JUSS" got such wonderful results that they were enthusiastic boosters for it.

All druggists are authorized by us to guarantee "JUSS" unreservedly to kill dandruff (no matter how bad the case may be) stop itching hair and promote a wonderful new growth and the purchase returned to them. If it fails in any one particular to do what we claim for it. We take all the chances.

Thousands of Californians are using "JUSS" and they are all enthusiastic about it. Its action will simply amaze you.

If you have dandruff, if your hair is falling out, if your scalp is too oily and itchy, if your hair is not growing as it should, get a bottle of "JUSS" today and thank us next week for telling you all about it.

All Wetaskiwin Druggists sell "JUSS" $2.00 per bottle (a full month's treatment).

$4.00 PER DAY FOR HARVEST

Regina, July 26.—At a conference of labor officials from the four western provinces, in Winnipeg, it was agreed that $4.00 per day would be the standard harvest wage this year, according to an announcement of the provincial employment bureau here.

Harvest operations will be general in Alberta by August 5, unless most unfavorable weather sets in during the interval. Crop reports from all over the province show that the crop will be less than last year; in southern Alberta it will be twenty per cent lower, and in northern Alberta, the yield will be ten per cent down.

COAL ALWAYS ON HAND

The Skipper of the J. F.

Tad Weldon was chopping wood at the kitchen door of a little farmhouse that stood close to the shore of Lake Champlain. Although the thermometer showed six degrees below zero, Tad, who was as rugged as his own Vermont hills, had taken off his coat.

As he drove the axe into the stubborn logs he talked to himself in a queer, jerky fashion.

"Mighty slow way to cut wood! Now if I had that portable sawmill that's advertised second hand for — four hundred dollars—I could clean up any wood lot in the time—time it takes me to chop enough for our own use."

He paused at the end of a powerful stroke, and taking off his cap, wiped his streaming forehead. "I know I could make a go of it," he continued. "We've got twenty acres of fine oak and beech. Father said it would cut pretty close to a hundred cords to the acre. With coal at four dollars a ton, there'll be a lot of people looking for good hard wood in store and farance logs. Phil and I could cut and take half a dozen loads up to White Hall and through the canal to Albany."

A sharp gust of stinging cold wind reminded him that it was no time to stand idly dreaming, and he turned again to his work. "I can't see where that four hundred dollars is coming from," he said to himself. "But just the same I'll buy that sawmill—I'll buy it if I can only get another couple of hundred ahead."

"Tad!" called Mrs. Weldon from the kitchen. "I guess you will have to go to town and do a little trading. I haven't a bit of flour in the house, and I used up the last bit of molasses yesterday. We need some sugar too, if you can get it, and I should like a pound of that good tea, such as you got me last time. I believe we are going to have a change of weather—the old man says it's about due now—and I'd hate to have a big storm come on while we're short of provisions."

Tad struck his axe into a log. "All right mother, I'll take the J. F. There is a good breeze, and I can run up and back in one quarter the time it would take old Nell to go half way by road."

The J. F. was Tad's ice boat, which he had built and christened Jack Frost. He may well be pardoned if he was more than willing to lay aside his axe for the fun of a twenty mile spin in the speedy craft.

"Oh, I wish there was some other way for you to go than on that ice boat!" exclaimed Mrs. Weldon. "I'm always worried for fear you'll get into one of those awful cracks."

"No fear of that," laughed Tad as he wriggled into his fur coat and pulled his warm cap down over his ears. "There's only one big crack on the lake right now, and it's about five miles out. I won't go within a mile of it."

Like other large bodies of water Lake Champlain seldom freezes smooth or remains smooth for any length of time. Although the ice may be several feet thick, it frequently opens in long cracks that widen rapidly and close quickly with a force that tilts the ice like a sharp angle. When that has happened a few times there are long stretches of rough broken ice bordering the cracks. Frequently the ice on one side of a wide crack will be forced several feet above the ice on the other side.

There were few skippers on the lake who were a match for Tad Weldon in cleverness and in daring, and although there were several boats faster than the Jack Frost, Tad had won the open championship race that year, largely because he was ready to take any reasonable risk.

"I promise to be back at one o'clock at the latest, so you needn't worry," called Tad.

It took him only a few minutes to hoist a jib and maulsail and then, with a wave of his hand to his mother, he was off. Once clear of the point the Jack Frost caught the stiff breeze sweeping across from the Adirondack mountains and heeled forward.

"Forteen minutes," remarked Tad as he glanced at his watch after bringing the boat up into the wind inside the breakwater in front of the city wharves. "Not bad for ten miles but she'll do better sailing a little closer to the wind."

It took Tad longer to do his marketing than he had expected, for the town clock struck twelve before he had made his last purchase. As he hurried along he noticed a knot of people gathered in front of the bulletin board at the Journal office, and wondered what they found so interesting.

He had no time to stop, however, and hurried on, reaching the boat, his first race was to store his purchases where they would not be jolted off in case he struck rough ice. Setting the jug of molasses in a safe corner in the stern, he tied the handle to the framework.

He had hoisted the maulsail and was preparing to run up the jib when the sound of footstep came him to glance over his shoulder. A tall, powerfully built man was approaching; and Tad caught sight of a second man emerging from behind the city wall beneath one of the wharves. The big man carried a suitcase, which he handled as if it were heavy. Stopping close to Tad, he said in a low voice:

"My friend and I want to get across to Plattsburg. We're in a hurry. Will you take us over?"

There was nothing unusual in the request; people frequently employ fast ice boats to get from place to place on Lake Champlain. Tad had picked up many a dollar that way. He would have liked nothing better than to undertake the trip, but he remembered that he had promised to be home at one o'clock, and he could not hope to do so if he made the run to Plattsburg.

"I don't believe I can do it, mister," he said. "Sorry, but I've got to get this stuff home. More than all that you're not dressed for a trip across the lake; you'll freeze."

"Yes, don't let that worry you," said the second stranger. "There's ten dollars in it for you if you get us in 'quick time.'"

"I'd like to earn ten dollars, but I promised my mother to be back at one o'clock, and it's nearly that now. She worries like the dickens if I happen to be late."

"Look here, son, we haven't any time to fool with you. If you won't go for ten dollars, maybe this will persuade you!" said the man, as he drew an automatic revolver from the pocket of his overcoat.

For an instant Tad was too frightened and astonished to move. "How—what?" he stammered.

"Keep your mouth shut and do as you're told," snapped the big man. "Catch hold of that rope; Duggan!" Then as the Jib fluttered up he ordered Tad to take the tiller and head the boat for the New York shore.

As the Jack Frost rounded the end of the breakwater it met a wind that felt like a knife and that caused the two men to flatten out on the floor. The big man held fast to the heavy seatcush with one hand and grasped the pistol with the other.

"Drive her, boy!" he shouted. "And don't try any tricks with us."

Tad "drove her" and the thrill of the bulletlike speed sent the blood tingling in his veins. Gradually he lost his fear of the man in front of him and growing anger burned in his heart. Who were these ruffians anyway? Why were they holding him up this way? He ground his teeth. No tricks? Well, what else could he do? That was there was not much he could do, but if they gave him half a chance he would show them something.

Once out on the broad lake, the Jack Frost went along the rate of a mile a minute. The maulsail cloth of the cutting wind was more than the smaller man, Duggan, could bear. Instead of keeping a lookout ahead, he pulled his cap down over his face and clung blindly to the framework of the boat. The other man did not alter his position, but, crouching so the floor with his face toward the stern, kept a watchful eye toward the steersman.

They were running almost parallel to the big crack with its border of rough ice. Little by little Tad edged toward it until his quick eye caught sight of a possible jumping place. He went close to the ice on the near side of the crack and waited for a good take-off for the "what kind of ice lay beyond it. Tad did not know. Setting his teeth, he swung the boat sharply to port and at terrific speed drove the boat for the crack.

Observing the sudden change in direction, the big man glanced over his shoulder to see where Tad had gone. Before he could regain his position the Jack Frost struck the rough ice with a crash that sounded as though it would smash her into kindling wood. Splinters of ice flew madly high. For a moment the boat flew through space and then landed with a frightful jolt.

The next moment it was again skimming on its way over smooth ice. Duggan, who was clinging to the feet of the mast, dragged himself by his knees, and pulled the cap from his face, and glanced around him in a dazed manner.

"What the blazes!" he began; then caught his breath sharply. "Where's Jim?" he shouted.

"If you mean your friend, he got off when we jumped the crack back there," Tad shouted in reply.

"And the other fellow?"

"Took it with him, I reckon. I don't see it anywhere."

"Turn this devil boat round and go back for the suitcases!" roared the man. "If that suitcase belongs to me."

"All right!" answered Tad. "Back we go!" Swinging round in a wide half circle, he headed again toward the crack.

"I can't see anything of the grip or of Jim," roared Duggan. "Where are you heading for anyhow?"

"Got to find a place where we can jump the crack again," Tad shouted in reply. "We're going about twenty miles from where we crossed before, but there's a good chance just ahead, better he-down and hang on. Here we go!"

It was not so rough a crossing as the first had been, but it was bad enough, and Tad hoped that his passenger would keep his head down as he had done before.

"If he'll give me six minutes, I can do it," he thought.

One, two, three minutes passed and then Duggan raised his head and stared in front of him.

"Hey, you!" he shouted. "We've headed straight back to the crack. We started from! Turn round and steer for Plattsburg. That suitcase ain't way over here."

Tad made no reply, but held the Jack Frost steadily on the course for the city wharves four miles away. With a savage oath the man drew a knife from his hip pocket and began crawling toward the stern. "Turn her round, I tell you!" he stormed.

For an instant it seemed to Tad that he must obey or feel the blade between his ribs; then his eye fell on the molasses jug still fixed firmly in its place beside him. With a quick jerk he pulled the lookout loose and swung the jug over his head.

"Stay where you are," he yelled, "or I'll let you have it!"

Duggan hesitated; they were scarcely six feet apart; the boy could hardly miss him at that distance. The man had no desire to be knocked off while the craft was travelling at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Holding to the boom, he rose unsteadily to his feet, and at that moment the Jack Frost flashed past the end of the breakwater and swung in to the wind close to the wharves.

Still clinging to his jib, Tad sprang from the boat and started for the shore at top speed. He expected that the man would pursue him and was determined to defend himself with the jug; half frozen and aching in every part Duggan had but all desire for a muscle, he dragged himself ashore and was seeking shelter among the lumber piles when a policeman suddenly seized him. At the same time two other policemen halted Tad and demanded that he give an account of himself.

"Well, a couple of men held me up on the lake and made me take them over to Plattsburg," began the boy.

"Where are they now?"

"There's one of them," replied Tad, pointing to Duggan. "The other is out on the lake somewhere—at least I left him there ten minutes ago. He's a big man and he was going to shoot me. If I didn't take him over to Plattsburg."

"That's the man we're looking for!" exclaimed one of the officers. The Collinsville savings bank was robbed last night. Come on boy. We need your help."

As they hurried back to the boat the officer explained that the thieves had stolen five thousand dollars in gold and about the same amount in Liberty bonds.

"The man came in about noon," he said. "We had a description of the men and kept a close watch for 'em, but they were too quick for us. There is a thousand dollars offered for their arrest and the return of the money."

It was an easy matter for Tad to find the place where he had jumped the Jack Frost across the big crack. As they approached the spot they caught sight of the suitcase. It was broken open and a quantity of gold coins and several packages of bonds were scattered round. Drawing their revolvers the policemen picked their way cautiously through the rough ice. But they had little to fear from the once desperate bank robber. They found him crouched among the tilted ice, trying to shield himself from the blinding wind. One arm lay useless at his side, and from a jagged cut on his forehead the blood trickled down in a freezing stream down his face.

BITTERN LAKE

On Monday, July 4th, there passed away one of the most highly esteemed residents in this community, in the person of Arthur I. Lomas, whose prolonged illness of over a year, was terminated with unerring precision. At first it was thought that a change to a lower altitude would be beneficial and Mr. Lomas visited Forest at Del. Lomas, Wash., and though his health seemed improved on his return, the old symptoms returned after a few days, and the doctor's advice was followed in going to Mayo Bros. Rochester, Minn., who also gave the same verdict, and though the treatment was beneficial for a time, the old weakness returned, but the end was calm and peaceful.

Mr. Lomas was born at Goderich, Ont., September 6th, 1858, afterwards moving to Michigan, and came out to the west with his family in 1905, and has lived in this locality ever since, with the exception of a few years at Pigeon Lake. His quiet unassuming manner and kindly disposition made him a friend and his memory will be kept green in the hearts of those who knew him best.

On Wednesday July 6th the funeral service was conducted by Ven. Archdeacon Horscroft of Camrose, first at the residence and at the Bittern Lake cemetery where the remains were laid to rest. The floral tributes and the large assembly of friends testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The pallbearers were Messrs. T. Fowler, A. C. Hoover, W. McFarly, Garfield Baker, H. McNary and D. Gouche.

His widow, three sons James, Chas. and Wellington and one daughter, Ruth, are left to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and a wise and affectionate father. Two sisters, Mrs. T. Fowler of Camrose and Mrs. Cliff of Pinckney, Mich., and one brother of Bay City, Mich., survive the deceased.

Life's labor done, as sinks the clay,
Light from his load, the spirit flies,
While heaven and earth combine to say,
How blest the righteous when he dies.

According to a recent report issued, Lomas has had more convictions for infractions of the liquor act than any other town in the province. This is either a bad one on the town or a compliment to the vigilance of the police, which ever way you like to take it, is representative.

KNOB HILL

A meeting was held on July 27th at the residence of John Nelson, for the purpose of forming a U.F.A. local at Knob Hill. Mr. Haumason, one of the members of the U.F.A. in Wetaskiwin came out to help organize the local which will be known as the Seattle U.F.A. A large crowd attended this meeting, at which quite a number of ladies joined. An opening of the local will be held with a dance on August 19th, at the residence of John Nelson. A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Haumason at the close of the meeting.

After the U.F.A. meeting closed another meeting was held for the new proposed hall site. There were a few votes suggested and a vote was taken, resulting in the hall being situated on the corner of Mr. John Carlson's farm, near the new Knob Hill store.

Mr. Stanford Nelson will turn his sawmill over free of charge to the boys to saw the lumber and shingles for the new hall.

Mr. Ernest Latzow and Clarence Meyers of Spokane, are touring the country in Mr. Latzow's Westlock car, coming all the way from Spokane. They intend to go to Wisconsin before returning to Spokane.

The new Back Lake road which is being built from Knob Hill post office is progressing rapidly under Mr. Stone. A gang of men and teams are working.

Juvenile Diplomat

"Mother," said Bobbie, after a full week of obedience, "have I been a good boy lately?"

Yes, dear, a very very good boy. And do you trust me?"

Why, of course, mother trusts her little boy.

I mean really, really trust me, you know?"

Yes, I really, really trust you. Why do you ask?"

Just because, if you do trust me like you say you do, why do you go on hiding the jam?"

The death of Rev. Father Alphonse Lemarchand, O.M.I., who for the past three years has been parish priest at St. Albert took place in the General hospital, Edmonton Friday night at the age of 62 years, after a brief illness. Decceased, who has been a resident of the Edmonton district for the past 27 years was widely known and highly respected amongst the Catholics of the diocese in which he labored in several parishes. He had the reputation of being a hard worker and always had the interests of his parishioners at heart.

CANADIAN GRAVES IN GOOD CONDITION SAYS COL. McMILLAN

Toronto, July 23.—The people of Canada may set their minds at rest concerning the bodies of their beloved heroes, who sleep where they fell in the soil of Flanders and France defending civilization against the Teutonic onslaught, was the reassuring message which Col. McMillan, of the territorial staff of the Salvation army brought to the city yesterday in reply to the distressing item cabled to Canada, after publication in the London Express, of the empty Canadian graves.
"The cemeteries of the Canadians are in splendid condition," he assured.
